

Caryopteris x clandonensis

'White Surprise'

Its bright variegation sets off well the violet blue flowers.

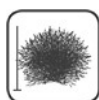

'White Surprise', a variegated Caryopteris surprises with its very bright, white rimmed foliage.

The shape is compact and round, its growth is good.

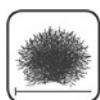

The flowers in August -September, often continuing into October, are light violet blue.

Moderate dimensions, an ornamental foliage from spring onwards and a long flowering period make 'White Sunrise' an interesting decor plant for gardens going well GRAND BLEU® and its deeper foliage and flowers.

Characteristics

1,00 m

1,00 m

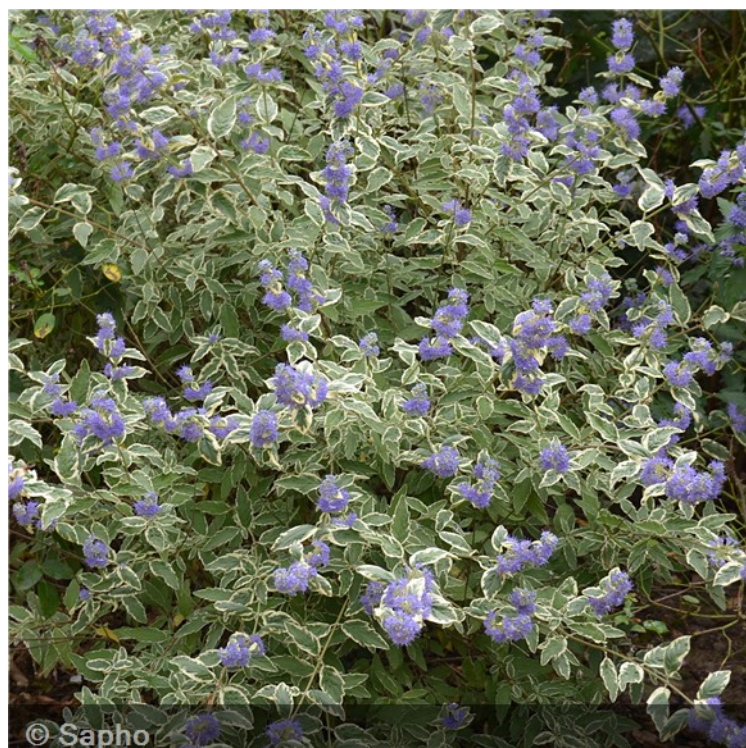

08-10

-15°C

© Sapho

© Sapho

Season(s) of interest

Autumn

Summer

Spring

Selected by

Jan Jacobs Bos

Editor

Sapho

P.B.R. / European P.B.R

EU 25448

